Temporary Commercial Driver's License Affidavit

The Department of Motor Vehicles is issuing you a temporary license of the same type and classification which is currently reflected on your driver's license record.

Although you have a commercial driver's license, the records of the department show that your physical examination has expired. Because a current physical examination is required to legally operate a commercial motor vehicle, you are not currently eligible to operate commercial vehicles.

As long as your license status remains valid, when you file a current physical examination with the department, you will regain your privilege to operate a commercial motor vehicle.

When you are eligible to receive a permanent license, you may choose to surrender your commercial driver's license and obtain a non-commercial driver's license.

Affidavit:

I agree and understand that the temporary license issued to me on this date is valid only for the operation of NON-Commercial vehicles.

I also understand that when I am eligible to receive a permanent license, in addition to any other requirements for licensing, I may:

- ◆ Retain my commercial driver status by filing a new physical examination with the department, or;
- ◆ Apply for a NON-Commercial driver's license.
